Rationale

How we feel about ourselves, our confidence and self-worth, independence and resilience effects every aspect of our lives; it affects the way we live our lives, how we relate to others and underpins our ability to achieve our true potential. The process of developing and securing personal well-being and social competence begins from birth with the kinds of interactions and responses we receive from others. Learning to be a social being, understanding the needs of others and having self-control takes time and this needs to be recognised. By the time they are five children will have made important decisions about themselves as people including their self-worth. This area of development sets the scene for learning and must be nurtured with understanding by all.

“Children’s personal, social and emotional development (PSED) is crucial for children to lead healthy and happy lives, and is fundamental to their cognitive development. Underpinning their personal development are the important attachments that shape their social world. Strong, warm and supportive relationships with adults enable children to learn how to understand their own feelings and those of others. Children should be supported to manage emotions, develop a positive sense of self, set themselves simple goals, have confidence in their own abilities, to persist and wait for what they want and direct attention as necessary. Through adult modelling and guidance, they will learn how to look after their bodies, including healthy eating, and manage personal needs independently. Through supported interaction with other children, they learn how to make good friendships, co-operate and resolve conflicts peaceably. These attributes will provide a secure platform from which children can achieve at school and in later life.”

Statutory Framework for the EYFS Educational Programme.

To provide effectively for the learning, interests and needs of all our children we will use the ‘Statutory Framework for The Early Years Foundation Stage’ to inform our practice. The seven key features of effective practice from the non-statutory Development Matters will be at the heart of our day to day practice. We recognise the individuality of all children and the need to nurture their confidence, capabilities, and independence. Our curriculum will reflect the needs and interests of our children and we will develop more in depth learning through schemas, projects, real world experiences and repeated and motivating activities. To this end we will ensure that our practice reflects the characteristics of effective teaching and learning; Playing and Exploring, Active Learning and Creating and Thinking Critically. Our children that are on or being assessed for our resourced places are assessed using the Developmental Journal resources.

Our support for children’s Personal, Social and Emotional development is very closely linked to our work to support British Values and we know that all communities share a vision for respect and tolerance.

We recognise that each child is unique and can be resilient, capable, confident and self-assured.

Objectives Our objectives set out how we implement our aims

- We will ensure that our children feel valued and we will be sensitive to their individual needs
- We will be sympathetic, warm, accepting and curious. Create connections and show empathy. We will listen to what the child tells us, with their body language, actions and sounds and words.
- We will provide words and meanings to name and express emotions, so children can practice how to handle them as they arise.
- We will ensure a positive ethos within the nursery, which is recognised by parents and visitors as a friendly and welcoming place
- We will ensure that all adults are aware of and understand the importance of maintaining a common culture towards the emotional and social development of children
- We will ensure that all adults are good role models. Children learn not only by what we say to them but by what they see us doing and how they see the adults at school relating to each other and other people.
- We will encourage children to understand and make friendships
- We will ensure opportunities for play and learning that acknowledge children's different religious beliefs and cultural backgrounds
- We will provide experiences that provide opportunity for children to learn about, practice and show care and concern for others, for living things and the environment
- We ensure we use the routines of the nursery day to promote all aspects of personal social and emotional development
- We will increase staff knowledge about personal, social and emotional development through relevant in-service training.
- We will involve and support parent / carer in our work by sharing individualised, specific and relevant strategies from our schema toolkit, 50 Things to do Before you're 5 app and Tiny Happy People website in relation to personal, social and emotional development
- We will discuss children and their interests weekly to inform planning, and share at home with parents and carers through our What's Happening to help support and deepen children's learning through play. Half termly planning newsletters are also developed by staff and shared with parents/carers.
- To ensure that children are making the best progress, over time, we will assess their progress and interests termly using Development Matters and the key observational checkpoints including the Developmental Journal materials for those children on specialist places, supported to make smaller steps of progress. The results of these, will inform future planning both at an individual level and also at a curriculum level.
